ERSA Summer School 2017

Draft Programme is now out!

There were 62 strong applications and the selected 25 participants come from 15 different countries across Europe and beyond. The summer school theme this year is "GIS and Regional Science: Theory and Applications" and the aim will be to provide Ph.D. students and early career researchers with an overview and hands-on practical lab experience of the use of Geographical Information Systems (GIS) and Geoinformatics in Regional Science.

In addition, the summer school will offer students the opportunity to present their work and progress of their research, to interact with their peers and to receive valuable comments from invited senior scholars and speakers including: Maria Abreu, Graham Clarke, Rachel Franklin, Andy Newing, Jouke van Dijk

The programme for the 30th ERS Summer School will take place in Mytilene, Lesbos island, Greece between 9-15 July 2017 more
