Handbook of Innovation and Regulation

Pontus Braunerhjelm, KTH Royal Institute of Technology, Sweden

Martin Andersson, Blekinge Institute of Technology, Sweden, President of ERSAs Nordic

Knut Blind, Technische Universität Berlin, Germany

Johan E. Eklund, Blekinge Institute of Technology, Sweden

Edward Elgar Publishing 2023

About the book

The Handbook of Innovation and Regulation embraces some of the key policy areas such as the regulation of markets, critical sectors, and global and regional aspects, focussing particularly on those regulations which target innovation. Reviewing these often interconnected policy areas in terms of both macroeconomic and microeconomic issues, this Handbook expertly studies how regulations in differing fields can affect innovative activities. By placing innovation centre stage, the contributors emphasise the direct and indirect effects of imposed regulations. Further, they illustrate the critically important overall impact of innovation to make firms competitive, promote economic growth and increase societal welfare.
